ABOUT BRITISH PARLIAMENTARY FORMAT

- British Parliamentary debate or BP, is the most popular style of intercollegiate debating in the world. It is the format used at the annual World Universities Debating Championship (WUDC). Some people refer to BP as “Worlds” or “WUDC format”.
- The tournament will follow a British Parliamentary Debate format where there shall be 4 teams participating in one round with two Speakers in each team. Two teams represent the Government (in support of the motion), and two teams represent the Opposition (opposed to the Government and motion). Participants will be informed of their team’s position in a given round just before the motion is announced.
- Here are the general names of the teams and the names of the individual roles:

Opening Government (OG) Prime Minister & Deputy Prime Minister	Opening Opposition (OO) Leader & Deputy Leader of Opposition
Closing Government (CG) Member of Government & Government Whip	Closing Opposition (CO) Member of Opposition & Opposition Whip

The Government opens the debate, and the Opposition delivers the final speech. Each speaker presents one 7-minute speech. The speeches proceed in this order:

1. Prime Minister
2. Leader of Opposition
3. Deputy Prime Minister
4. Deputy Leader of Opposition
5. Member of Government
6. Member of Opposition
7. Government Whip
8. Opposition Whip

- The speakers speak in rotation, beginning with the first team member of 1st Proposition (“the Prime Minister”). They are followed by the opening speaker for 1st Opposition (“Leader of the Opposition”), who in turn is followed 1st Proposition’s second speaker (“the Deputy Prime Minister”), who is followed by 1st Opposition’s second speaker (“Deputy Leader of Opposition”), who is followed by 2nd Proposition’s first speaker (“Member of Government”), who is followed by 2nd Opposition’s first speaker (“Member of Opposition”), who is followed by 2nd Proposition’s second speaker (“Government Whip”), who is followed by 2nd Opposition’s second speaker (“Opposition Whip”).

The job of the PM is to present a debatable, persuasive case in support of the motion. To this end, a speaker should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Define the motion. This might include: defining specific terms in the motion, advocating specific policy change(s), and/or articulating the roles of relevant stakeholders.</li> <li>○ Provide a complete case. Establish that a problem exists, and provide reasons why your team's advocacy resolves it. If necessary, signpost the new material your partner will add.</li> <li>○ Avoid being too clever. Aim to set up a debatable case that supports the most obvious interpretation of the motion.</li> </ul>	The DPM closes for the Opening Government, and should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Rebuild. Defend your team's case by answering the LO's refutation. Reiterate the key elements of your team's position.</li> <li>○ Refute the LO's case. Be specific. Criticize what you've just heard. Compare it to your team's position.</li> <li>○ Follow through on promises. If your partner declared that you would present new material in support of your team's position, do so. At the very least, add depth to the original case by providing additional details, examples, or explanation.</li> </ul>	The Leader should oppose the motion and the case presented by the PM. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Refute the PM's case. Be specific. Criticize the case you've just heard.</li> <li>○ Oppose. Why is the motion itself problematic? State your team's position and provide reasoning to support it. As you prepare for this speech, consider that the motion might possibly do more harm than good, foreclose better alternatives, or be tethered to a destructive worldview.</li> <li>○ Recognize that the first two tasks on this list are not always separate. A good PM speech will allow you to oppose both at the same time.</li> </ul>	The DLO concludes the first half of the debate for the Opposition, and should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Rebuild. Defend your partner's case from the DPM's refutation. Reiterate the key elements of your team's position.</li> <li>○ Refute. Address new, relevant material presented by the DPM. Illustrate any important tension(s) between the PM &amp; DPM speeches. Highlight LO refutation that was ignored or insufficiently covered by the DPM.</li> <li>○ Add depth. Add something to your team's case. You can provide additional examples, explanation, or analysis to support a previous claim. You can present a new argument.</li> </ul>	The Member of Government opens the second half of the debate, and should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Refute. Address any new contribution(s) from the DLO. Consider engaging in holistic refutation of the OO, or even preempting what the CO is likely to claim.</li> <li>○ Offer an "extension." Add something new. You might choose to present an entirely new argument, or you might opt to develop an important argument that the OG underdeveloped.</li> <li>○ Explain how the CG's position fits into the debate. Avoid contradicting the OG case. Explain why what you're adding is important in relation to the OG case.</li> </ul>	The Government Whip should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Identify the 2-3 most relevant concepts in the debate. These concepts should serve as the main points of your speech. At some point, explain why your conceptual breakdown is the best way to view the debate.</li> <li>○ Sell the "extension." Demonstrate how your team's material relates to other important content in the debate. Articulate why your position defeats the most important arguments presented by the Opposition.</li> <li>○ Refute. Answer the contribution made by the Member of Opposition. Engage in holistic refutation of the Opposition.</li> <li>○ Avoid making new arguments. You may, however, add details or examples in support of previous claims.</li> </ul>	The Member of Opposition should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Refute. Answer the new material presented by the Member of Government. Consider engaging in holistic refutation of the entire Proposition bench. Look for and exploit contradictions/tensions between the OG &amp; CG.</li> <li>○ Make a contribution. Add something new. You might choose to present a new argument or to further develop an OO argument.</li> <li>○ Explain how the CO's contribution fits into the debate. Illustrate why your position is important in relation to the OO case. Avoid contradicting the OO if you can.</li> </ul>	The Opposition Whip closes the debate, and should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Identify the 2-3 most relevant concepts in the debate. The CG will have just done this. Identify different concepts. Argue why your concepts are more relevant than the CG's concepts in understanding the competing claims. The concepts you identify should then serve as the main points of your speech.</li> <li>○ Sell your contribution. Explain how your team's position relates to other important arguments in the debate.</li> <li>○ Avoid making new arguments. You may, however, add details or examples in support of previous claims.</li> </ul>
